SLUGLINE:	Being 20, Tunisian Mechanic Lady
HEADLINE:	Passionate about mechanics since a young age, Sabrina Hammami opens her own auto repair garage in 2011. At first skeptical of the idea of repairing their cars at a woman's garage, the number of clients has been (though) gradually increasing. But some time later and due to the lack of financial support, Sabrina is forced to close her garage, which has become too old. Since then, she has been doing odd jobs and trying, as best as possible, to live with dignity and preserve her financial independence.
DATELINE:	Tunis, Bizerte - 23/08/2018
SCRIPT:	00:00 – 00:26 "I am Sabrina Hammami. I am 29 years old. I am from Zarzouna. I was born and grew up here. I started working in the field of car repair since 2011. I studied in Ariana then I opened my own garage. Mechanics is my passion since I was young as it was my father's job. We all grew up in this garage." 00:27 – 00:42 "At the beginning, when I started my business, it was a little bit difficult. People didn't easily accept it because they weren't used to see a woman working in a professional field dominated by men. Gradually, I have managed to overcome that and they have found that a woman mechanic offers better quality of service than a man." 00:42 – 01:08 "Currently, we can say that I am jobless as I can't work in my garage which is in a bad

	condition. I need a lot of money to renovate it. During this time, I was obliged to find other jobs. I worked in a car wash. I sold sandwiches at the beach. I worked in an entertainment park for kids.” 01:09 – 00:31 “Tunisian young people are facing a serious problem that nobody is ready to help them, even the state. If you do a step forward, you are forced to step 10 steps backward. When you want to launch a business, you face big administrative issues and obstacles, as the taxes and the State has the duty to help them.” 00:32 – 00:45 “In 5 years, I see myself at the same place, working in my garage. This is where and how I imagine myself in the future. “
